download Q: In Android, how can I tell an app to run on one thread or on another? I am wondering if it is possible, in an Android app, to request one process or another? For example: I have an app which uses the blinkt service to flash a screen every few seconds. I want to request a processing thread for the blinkt service from the main UI thread. Is there any way of doing this? If not, is it even possible in principle? What about in Android 4.2? A: Different processes use different threads. You can always create your own custom service and thread pools so that you can start/join as many threads as you want. But Android doesn't expose an API for creating and pooling threads. In a widely anticipated report, the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights called on Pakistan to end the "indefensible" "death sentence" meted out to terrorists sentenced to death, saying that executions were carried out in a manner that is “unlawful and in breach of Pakistan’s international obligations.” Amnesty International, the Council of Europe, Reprieve, and other human rights groups have been intensely monitoring judicial proceedings in Pakistan since the July 18 conviction of Asma Jahangir, a women’s rights advocate and leading Pakistani human rights activist, and her husband, Haidar Abbas, whom Amnesty International has described as an “arbitrary imprisonment campaign.” Pakistan has condemned the report as a "mischievous," "international political interference," and has accused the United Nations of twisting facts, according to Dawn News. A Pakistani government source told the news agency the report 3da54e8ca3
