Fix bug with Office 2010 activation in W8.1/W10.Q: Split screen using centering an unordered list by the container in a responsive environment I'm trying to put all the details of the company a user is a member of right under the user. I'm fairly new to HTML/CSS so I'd appreciate advice on what is best. Ideally, the user on the right would take up about half of the screen and the user on the left would take up the other half of the screen. The user's page is a user profile. So: A: Actually this isn't that complicated. I'm going to use the flex-box model and take advantage of the padding-right: property of the first ul element: .center-container { display: flex; padding: 20px; /* Change the display property to inline-flex to make the second block take up half the remaining space */ } .left { flex: 1; width: 50%; padding-right: 20px; display: inline-block; background: red; } .right { flex: 1; width: 50%; padding-left: 20px; display: inline-block; background: pink; } item item item item
